@0:00 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I've heard so many great things about you from Matt. Oh, my. I had to pay him a lot for that.

@0:06 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

I believe it.

@0:07 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I'm just kidding.

@0:09 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

I think he's on the call.

@0:11 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, I see his name over there. I don't see his video or anything. Matt, are you there?

@0:22 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

Yeah, I see that. Actually, I see his note taker. I don't see Matt yet. Let's see.

@0:30 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And I've used that note taker before.

@0:43 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

What does that do? It's an AI note taker. He has one in here and so do I. so what it does, it just allows us to not have to focus on taking our own notes and instead will transcribe the call.

Depending on which note taker it is, mine will transcribe the call and do a recording of And so I can always go back to it, ask questions and say, Oh, what was said about this?

What was said about that? And have a, instead of sitting there like in the old times and have to write a ton of notes in the middle of a call, it allows us to communicate better.

@1:14 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Okay.

@1:17 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

I was just texting with him. So I know he knows about it. You know, I know that he was coming.

So maybe he, something just happened to, oh, there he is. All right. Let me let him in. All right.

He should be joining. Where are you located, Larry?

@1:43 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

At the moment, I'm located in Cape Coral, Florida.

@1:48 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

Okay.

@1:48 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

All right. And next week I'll be back in Laguna Beach, California.

@1:53 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

Oh, okay. All right. So funny enough. was just Laguna Beach is I'm assuming that's near Orange County.

@2:00 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Well, it's in Orange County. It's on the, obviously it's beach, so it's on the coastline. It's in, I guess, what you'd call South Orange County.

@2:07 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Okay. Yeah. I was just there in January.

@2:10 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

It was beautiful and gorgeous. Oh, you were in Laguna Beach?

@2:13 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah. I don't know if it was Laguna Beach. They called it Orange County. It was, we were at the Ritz right on the beach.

It like oversees a cliff. No, I don't know.

@2:25 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Well, there's a lot of cliffs there in Laguna Beach. In fact, in fact, that my background picture on my video, that's from my home office in Laguna Beach.

@2:37 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Not a bad view.

@2:38 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And it goes out the, yeah, looks out the window over the ocean. You can see Catalina Island out there.

@2:44 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

I love it. One of the things that surprised me, was like, oh, wow, there's an ocean and mountains. Cause I'm originally from Florida too.

So I'm from Miami and now we live in North Carolina. And so I'm used to seeing just ocean and not mountain.

@2:55 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And so seeing both at the same was, was, was, really nice. So we're in North Carolina. Right outside of Wilmington, on the coast.

On Wilmington.

@3:04 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

Are you familiar with it?

@3:05 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, because my sister has a place on Oak Island in North Carolina. Now she also has a house in Raleigh, North Carolina.

So she actually is renting out the beach house in Oak Island and lives in Raleigh most of the Yeah.

@3:26 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

We oftentimes use Raleigh as our airport. So we'll drive the two hours from Wilmington because it has a lot more connections or availability.

And so, yeah. Yeah. So. Well, hi, Matt. How's it going?

@3:37 - Matt Weisensee

Good. I listening to that call. Is that Kiowa Island?

@3:43 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

Is that in South Carolina or North Carolina? That one I'm not familiar with.

@3:47 - Matt Weisensee

I thought I heard you say something about that. Because was in Charleston and there's a beautiful island right south of there.

Man, I fell in love with that place. It's like. The notebook, you're living in it, except you don't have the beautiful date.

@4:05 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

You're saying that it's in South Carolina?

@4:07 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, yeah. Really, really cool place.

@4:10 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And my sister lives in North Carolina on Oak Island, and that's what we were talking about.

@4:15 - Matt Weisensee

Oh, okay. My brother got married in Myrtle Beach, and then we used to go to Wright's.

@4:21 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

Wright'sville. Yep, that's right by me, yeah.

@4:24 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, yeah, there's like a little, little honky-tonk bar there on the sand.

@4:28 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

It was like stilted.

@4:29 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. We'd have bushwhackers. I think that's what it was.

@4:34 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

Yeah. Yeah, it's a quirky place over here. It's nice. We like it. But I'm really excited to speak with both of you.

I've been communicating a lot with Matt, and I'm really excited about what you guys are doing. I don't know if he gave you some background, but my husband's a business owner.

We're entrepreneurs, and I also have a coffee shop.

@4:51 - Matt Weisensee

I do my marketing, but we bought a coffee shop recently, too.

@4:54 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

So being in that entrepreneur world is something that is near and dear to me because I am Ben Hey.

Like I said, originally from Miami, but I was born in Nicaragua, and my husband is from, his family's from Cuba, and so living in Miami is, you become familiar with the fact that the people coming from Cuba or Nicaragua or third world countries don't have the freedom to start a business, don't have the freedom to just put grit into something and make their dreams come true.

And so I've always loved entrepreneurship. And so when Matt was giving me the rundown of what your goals are and what the platform, who you want to serve and all of that, I got really excited because I believe in that dream and I'm part of it.

And so it was really exciting to put a strategy together and to really think about who are the people that we were trying to acquire, right?

So you have your investors, you have your students, you have your entrepreneurs who are struggling, all of that. And so I can see it really scaling to really meet the needs of so many different people and businesses.

So I love it. All of that, just to say that I love it. mean, and really this call is...

Larry, for you to give you an option to ask me questions for us to discuss about it, anything that you think would be beneficial for you to know.

@6:09 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Okay, that's great. So how do you want to conduct that?

@6:14 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

you going to? So, question for you. Did you review the presentation that I sent? I also updated it to clearly define the initial phase, which is months one to three versus months four to six.

@6:29 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Right. Right. Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. Because I was, we, Matt and I always talked about doing kind of a shorter kind of proof of concept kind of launch that would be.

So when I saw a six month program, I go, well, I'm not sure I want to commit to a full six month program until we see how, you know, how it goes, so to speak.

@6:53 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. No, no, no, sure. Melissa, let me interject because, um, the original. My idea was to prove to ourselves and to a few of our angel friends that are interested in investing that this is a good idea.

And after, you know, almost a year now, you know, plugging away and, you know, building out all the modules and seeing, you know, that, I mean, it appears that we're right on track, keeping in step with the development of AI tools.

And technologies and all these different various platforms that you see popping up online and commercials and whatnot. I think we're in a perfect place.

The timing is impeccable. And I wanted to talk to you real quick before we jumped into the proposal, into the specifics about what happened to me this weekend.

So I went to, it was my birthday when I went to a wedding of a friend who's a, he's a really smart.

the parents Are Is Yes. I'm not to go. Thank Software engineer, business strategist, and I talked to him for many years about this angel investor that he has, and just by chance, serendipity, and I think Larry and I commented online on our portal about it, the guy has won, I think, the Forbes Entrepreneur of the Year Award twice, and he's a Babson College.

alum, and he's best friends with the President Spillini, and we were just bouncing ideas. He's like, man, that's a great idea because there's a lot of people trying to do this stuff, but we seem to have a good niche where we're trying to find students before they get into college, and we're also looking for struggling businesses and investors in this partner ecosystem that we've discussed.

said, you know what? He goes, if you pick two or three of those things and do it really well and communicate what your offering is to them, you're going to go far because there's people that can say they can do everything, and then there's a lot of them that just do one little thing, and they don't do it very well.

And he says, if you can do three or four things good, he goes, you're going to dominate in the space because he used the term over and over.

There's so much noise. It's like the .com era all over again. So just by chance. And then his lawyer sits on the left of me, and he's good friends with Arthur Blank, who's the name of the school at Babson is named after him, the owner of Home Depot and the Falcons.

And we have a four-hour discussion. We're dancing, and I meet his family and daughters, and we're talking inter-world the whole time.

And I'm plugging it, and, you know, just... I to get affirmation. And then, you know, and this morning, his daughter befriends me on Instagram and she's like a, you know, influencer.

And she and she texts me and says, oh, yeah, what a great time. And tell me more about Interworld because I've got a business.

I'm an art and fashion executive. I have a degree, Ivy League, and I want to start a business. So show me the ropes.

Where do I begin? She's this is how viral it became over a wedding discussion. So do you imagine if we put time, money, energy, have a compelling, connecting, incredible message and we market the hell out of this and we focus only on those three or four groups.

And we're just so fine tuned, laser focused on converting that exact three business groups. I mean, I think we could bring in 100,000 people easily and that evaluates our company in the in the tens of.

That's all I wanted to say. was just a really wild coincidence. I use the word serendipity because it was more than just a coincidence.

was the fact that we had all known the same people for 20 years and we sat together. He even said, I'm so busy and I'm working on this big, you know, $5 billion deal.

was like, I don't have time to do what you're doing, but I want to do what you're doing. That's what he said to me.

@11:29 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

That's awesome.

@11:31 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. Okay, go ahead.

@11:32 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

No, I think that's great. Larry, would you like for me to share my screen and we go over the presentation, even though you already saw it, or is there a better way for you to...

@11:45 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

That's probably, I mean, I can share my screen too because I had it up here, but maybe it's easier for you to share yours and I can, you know, talk to the various points.

SCREEN SHARING: Melissa started screen sharing - WATCH

@11:56 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yep, for sure. So how about... I... Is there something specific you want to hit on, or do you want me to give you just a general overview of the different sections?

@12:05 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, I don't think you need to go through it. I mean, I went through it pretty thoroughly, and maybe just focus in on a couple of things that catches my attention.

So your first, as you did an analysis here of the website, the existing Butternut website, and you're basically proposing a complete rewrite of the website.

So in terms of how that would come about, I mean, there's obviously already a lot of content on the existing website.

And I know we're pretty short on the SEO kind of stuff, and maybe some of the things you'd want for a funnel.

But where would you be going on to the Butternut too? Did reinvent the website, or what was the strategy for that?

@13:06 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

No, I would recommend Webflow. So as an agency, we actually just went through this process, so I can speak to it specifically.

We used HubSpot originally for our website and our CRM, and we recently transitioned over to Webflow as the website, so the CMS is what we call it, and then we went to go high level for our CRM.

And so what we realized is that in order to have conversions but also have a design-worthy website so that it does not look cheap or it meets the needs of what people are looking for and are expecting, it's better to have specific platforms.

Right now, Butternut is just a, you know, think of it as a very basic website builder that can be done very quickly, but it's not comprehensive.

It doesn't have also the conversion infrastructure that we're going to need in order to build forms. And email sequences and triggers and analysis and data to be able to tell us who's clicking on our site, where are they clicking, what are they interested in, and all of that, which is going to be really important in order to be able to operate based on data and not on what we think looks nice or what we think makes sense, right?

So instead, let's see the data that we're getting and then operate based on that. But it's going to be really important, especially if we're saying we're an AI company, right?

AI meaning it's up-to-date, modern, it's, you know, thinking ahead of the curve. If the website does not meet those expectations, the credibility is lost from the get-go.

And so the most important thing that people first analyze credibility and see, do I even want to engage with this company or brand or business, is usually the website, because it's a 24-hour on-site shop, right?

Instead of being a retail, you have it online 24 hours. see. let's see. And so people can click on it, walk through it, experience it, and see, is this company brand strategy, whatever, going to be worth my time and money?

And that is the very first and most important part that's going to allow us to then move them down the funnel to convert them to a freemium user, then from a freemium user to a paid user.

But it all starts with what they experience when they first get on the website. Did that answer your question?

@15:26 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Sort of. So it's called Webflow?

@15:30 - Melissa Cedenno (EmberTribe)

Webflow is a CMS, so a content management system. So it's very much like WordPress, but it has a lot more design capabilities and it just functions a lot smoother than anything else that is on the market right now.

@15:44 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah.

@15:45 - Matt Weisensee

can you help both of us understand? Because I tried to relay this discussion back a few months ago that CMS really is the most important factor.

Because we're going to be delivering all kinds of articles, and we're going to have people clicking that, you know, and we're going to have paywalls, and we want to have people have, you know, access to the platform after filling out questionnaires and forms or subscribing, et cetera.

And if we don't have the correct way to capture, track, convert, nurture people that are back clicks, et cetera, we won't ever know, you know, what is successful.

And I look at the current website as it was the stepping stone in our pre-launch. We could tell people we are a business, we build, you know, you know, a lot of content in it.

And before that, we had a web page that had a lot of the foundational elements of what we wanted to achieve, and we translated it into Butternut.

And Butternut, we get what we pay for. I ran into a problem with them last week when I was scraping the website for our...

AI bot, because it's written in React, it can't see anything. I used several different web scrapers and then tried chat bots and all kinds of different AI models, and it couldn't get any information out of our own website.

And I wrote the owner of it and said, this is fundamentally flawed. I mean, we want to be exposed to everyone, every click, every picture, every pixel.

And I had no response.

@17:35 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

That AI bot that you were working with, how does that fit into what Melissa's proposing here?

@17:41 - Matt Weisensee

It's incorporated in our proposal using Go High Level Your Webinar Kit that you discovered, which is a very good ROI I've been researching.

Webinars, know, selling, you know, one to many is a good That's good strategy, especially if we can automate it.

@18:03 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

That's why I'm asking about that sales agent bot that we subscribe to. Is that fitting into this or do we need to cancel that?

@18:14 - Matt Weisensee

Well, that's what I'm getting at. It's included in the proposal, but it might only be something that we use in the very beginning for Flash and Hype until we build up a better strategy and better SEO.

The sales closer is a live bot. I have two bots created right now, and I wanted I was I was hoping that we were going to launch maybe even this week.

But that's it's a month to month contract and we can do whatever we want with it. Larry, if it's effective and we could get some data back from it, we keep it.

@18:55 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

If not, I mean, Melissa is proposing here to re build. You the entire website on a different platform. So maybe Melissa, you should answer that.

Are you familiar with what we're talking about here?

@19:09 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, yeah. So that's a component of it. So putting Butternut aside, right? Wherever it is that your website's going to live, it needs to live somewhere, but what I'm proposing is, I think Webflow is like $14 a month or something.

It's going to be a much better setup than what you have on Butternut. You have to choose one or the other, right?

So my proposal is Webflow. Within Webflow, that is your content management system. That is where you design homepages, landing pages, your blogs will go live there, all of it.

That's your website. Apart from that, you also need a CRM, which is Go High Level, which is the same CRM we use.

Within Go High Level, that's where you're going to set up your contact forms for people to, you set it up, but it appears on your website.

So it's... It's... It's into it. It's intertwined. But in your CRM, that's where you set up the forms. What capture forms do you want people to fill out?

What are the triggers that if they click this, is an email going to be sent to them? All of that happens, all of those automations, including things like Twilio with text messages, email campaigns, sales conversion.

All of that happens within CRM, go high level, but it's mixed in with incorporated with your website, which would be Webflow or whatever you choose.

So they speak to each other, but have different functionalities, if that makes sense.

@20:40 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, I don't have any particular affinity with Butternut, by the way. Yeah. So this Webflow, is this something that I would be able to have access to if I wanted to tweak something?

Okay.

@20:53 - Melissa Cedenno (EmberTribe)

So the way that Ember Tribe works, and not every agency works this way, is the client always owns all of you own.

And you give us access, you can give access, you can take away access, we never want to own any of your accounts, whether that's a meta ad account, a Google ad account, a website, whatever, you will own everything, and you give and take away access as you please to whoever you want, because if not, people can and will hold that hostage, right, if your situation goes down and all that.

@21:24 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Well, yeah, and it's always my concern, too, is if your company goes out of business for whatever reason, then we're screwed, so to speak.

@21:32 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

no, it's your IP, they're your assets, and you give and you take, you give access and you take it away as you please to whoever.

@21:39 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

All right, great. Yeah, like I said, I mean, I accept your recommendation of Webflow, because like I said, you know, we picked, or Matt picked Butternut, quite a while ago, it seemed to serve the purpose at the time, so.

We need to evolve with the way the wind is blowing here.

@22:04 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, and it's only 20 bucks, so actually Webflow's cheaper. Is that just for the basic plan, or do we need to upgrade eventually?

Will we get more data?

@22:13 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

You may, but I think even we are on the $20 one. It's not anything that needs to be super fancy.

We just need to be able to access its platform and services to be able to build the site.

@22:26 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Okay.

@22:28 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah.

@22:30 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

All right. So that's, that's that. And then in terms of the, so once the web site has been put together, and then we're ready to go launching on some marketing campaigns.

@22:51 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Mm-hmm .

@22:53 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Mm-hmm I wanted to go over the, um, campaign, I think you listed five different. Yeah.

@23:06 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

The different five ICPs, based on my conversations with Matt, these can change. It just depends on what you want to target.

But in essence, these would be the audiences, the ICPs, the campaigns that you need to speak to them differently, right?

@23:24 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

You wouldn't speak to an investor in the same way you speak to a student. No, of course. I understand that.

I'm just thinking about the choices of what, on the initial launch, what we would target. A couple comments there.

First of all, your number one, one was there for students and young founders, is probably the least developed piece of our platform.

We were actually hoping to get a government grant, actually, to really build that out in a real strong way.

It's real weak on content and functionality at the moment, so I question whether this is the right time to initiate that particular target audience.

Do you agree with that, Matt, or?

@24:15 - Matt Weisensee

I don't know. I think it's the biggest market. I think we should, in parallel, not neglect it, but keep pre-launch marketing it.

We are hoping to get the Babson relationship, which is still in the works.

@24:36 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Matt, she has that as the fifth market there.

@24:41 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

They're not in order of priority.

@24:43 - Matt Weisensee

They're all happening at the same time. Yeah, yeah. And I never looked at five and one as different, but it's a different message to the school, to the administration, to the funding source than it is to the student.

I'm to Yeah. My to I because It's just coming up with an idea, trying to sell out your business.

@25:02 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

do think that going after the college level market is different than going after young people who are maybe even as young as elementary school age that we can attract to get involved with what we have to offer.

And that's why, why I've said it's, I think it's right now, I mean, my vision, I have a lot of vision for what that can be and what it can become, but it's also maybe premature to have that be a, one of the campaigns for the, um, yeah, it is so much because you don't want to come joining up and coming on board and looking at it and say, Oh, this is crap and go away forever.

You know?

@25:53 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. Well, to answer that question about, do I think it's important? I, I, do. And I think what Melissa just said is, you know, not neglecting any of them, marketing to all five groups, but focusing, maybe putting a little more attention and investment into just, right off the bat, of course, we need business partners in the network and we need investors in the short term.

But the general, you know, anyone with an idea approach kind of serves all of them. Anybody with an idea can put, you know, their $9 down and build a business in weeks, not months or years.

@26:44 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

So that's not really a target market though. I mean, how do you, how do you segment, you know, go on, go on Facebook and say, okay, give me, only expose this to people that might have an idea that...

@26:59 - Matt Weisensee

Well...

@27:01 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Well, segmenting like the location, geography, age group, certain cities, you know, you can segment based on audience interest and so and age groups.

So, for instance, the way that now, listen, I'm not the one that is the media buyer. not the strategist.

I have a team for that. So I'm not going to I'm not able to get into the super technical.

But when we are doing paid ads and we're trying to target specific ICPs that are different for one brand, the audience, the audience segmentation on meta, let's say, allows us to say, OK, a student, somebody who is living in a specific zip code, somebody who is interested in X, Y, Z.

So if we say, let's say somebody is interested in Tony Robbins or somebody, whatever, the different segmentations can all get granular in order to say for this segment.

I want you to talk this way. These are the ads I want you to show. This is a copy.

This is the image, the video that I want you to show for this segment. For the other segment that we're targeting, this is the ad copy I want you to show.

And so we're able to really define that as best as we can, as granular as we can, depending on who we're going after.

@28:19 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah.

@28:20 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Did that answer your question?

@28:21 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, yeah. And I think maybe when I'm talking about the youth piece of our platform is the weakest, it's only the weakest because I'm envisioning that we're going to have a lot of educational content and stuff like this for, but if somebody says young and they call them, they consider themselves an entrepreneur that has an idea to do something, I mean, that certainly is a target.

ACTION ITEM: Update ICP naming in proposal/materials; share w/ Larry & Matt - WATCH

In I think, let me just move over to number two for a second, because you have this thing called a struggling professional.

And. And. I would say replace that with something we just simply call an entrepreneur, because, you know, if you go into profiles in Facebook, for example, and I haven't studied some of the other platforms as tightly, but I mean, that's part of Meta, so it incorporates Instagram, I guess, and WhatsApp as well, right?

@29:22 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

Yeah.

@29:23 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

But if you look at the profiles, entrepreneur is a common tag that you see on people, because I've been really building up my friends list and my followings on Facebook, and I'm really keying in on people who call themselves an entrepreneur.

Yeah. So that would be a good target, and that really is almost the definition of the core market that I think we'd be seeking, as somebody who considers themselves an entrepreneur and is interested in having a

Resources behind them to help them achieve, you know, the various goals and tasks that they need to go through in order to be successful.

@30:10 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, but a segment of that, because when you ask an entrepreneur, you know, what their thoughts are about, like, say, our platform, they already are sophisticated enough to say, well, I'm using this tool and that tool and I'm a business owner and they're pretty proud.

And narcissistic almost. I met a bunch of them at this wedding. I mean, this was like a Wall Street coffee shop.

It was everyone in there was an entrepreneur with five companies and investments. But if we took entrepreneurs that are younger from a certain, you know, demographic, then we target it.

Yeah, I agree with you. I guess I'm saying just but we can't just target all of them because there is.

That's a gigantic group, and it'll cost a lot of money to try to reach every one of them, every single person that says they're an entrepreneur.

@31:07 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

Yeah, and struggling professionals is an internal phrase. We wouldn't use that in our copy or in our marketing. You know, it's just to designate who is our target.

Like, it's not somebody who is in this box. It's not somebody who is running a $20 million company and is not struggling, right?

So we're just designating, like, these are the people who went to med school but did not get any business class.

So they know how to run a practice on the medical side, but not on the business side, things like that.

Also, there's other interchangeable terms that we can use. Founder, co-founder, owner, you know, all of those.

@31:47 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Well, I'm really addressing what you're describing, what a struggling professional is, because you are talking about doctors and lawyers and accountants and that type of people.

And going to what Matt just said, if you think that... But somebody who calls themselves an entrepreneur is an arrogant, hard sell, which I don't agree with, but you're the character I saying that everyone is.

@32:10 - Matt Weisensee

I'm saying there's a bunch of them, the sophisticated ones. And let me give you an example. I didn't bring this up yet because I was going to surprise you with some good news.

We have a we have a first client, my my best friend from high school, who's a world famous Sommelier wine captain.

He's an entrepreneur. owns several, you know, very successful wine companies. He started Wally Wines in Los Angeles and owns Vino Inoteca in Las Vegas and inside a resort world.

And I mean, he's a he's a very well-known guy in the entertainment food industry. You know, he was hanging out with with Sidney Pollack and Eva Longoria this weekend.

And and I was chatting with him about my book that I'm about to publish. And he says, Matt, I want to talk to you about this AI stuff.

He goes, you know me, I was always the artistic guy that with all the connections and the charismatic guy, which is exactly what he was, with zero business sense.

And he says, I want you to help me launch my new restaurant in Beverly Hills next month. I went, sure, let me know.

He goes, yeah, it's going to be star-studded, all kinds of celebrities. He said Tom Cruise might be there. He's friends with him and Billy Bob Thornton.

His name dropped a lot of folks, but I went on and looked at his Instagram site and he's hanging out with the Eagles and Kiss and the Lakers.

I mean, he's a legit guy. And he was, you know, really interested in learning about how AI marketing could help launch his new.

you. you. Thank So it's a perfect example of the kind of people which are struggling professionally. not struggling, but he's struggling to understand business, if that makes sense.

@34:13 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, that's fair.

@34:14 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

So that was the main point I was trying to make there, is that category I'm not a big fan of at all, because I have, as Matt may have told you, that we were involved in the medical industry for quite a while, actually.

And I always about, because we designed a real innovative platform for doctors to communicate with their patients and monitor their health conditions and all this kind of stuff.

And I always claim that the way I designed the algorithms in there, that it was an early form of artificial intelligence because it would analyze .

. All of this data, and decide whether or not there should be any concern to the doctor, and we would have an alerting mechanism that alerted both the doctors and the family, and I don't want to go into a long story about that, but the point is, convincing doctors in particular, and I think the same thing holds with attorneys, convincing them to do anything is not very easy, and it isn't a market I particularly ever envisioned would be somebody that would do well within our platform.

So it's...

@35:36 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, well, there's also plumbers, plumbers and painters and babysitters and artists in that group too, yeah.

@35:43 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, but that's, I'm talking about professionals. I don't consider a plumber as a professional, sorry, but...

@35:50 - Matt Weisensee

What?

@35:51 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

But, Larry, you know, right now, the plumbers, the HVAC owners, the electricians, those are the ones that are gonna...

Be making the most money, you know, because of the professionals, unless you have a law degree or a medical degree, AI is taking over a lot of money.

@36:10 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, I always consider them tradesmen. And in the trades, I think our platform would be great for trades. In fact, like I said, when I was going through looking for contacts within Facebook, I always landed on a lot of trade-type people who were trying to either start or expand their business and you name it.

@36:29 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, that's a good way to put it, Larry. I think maybe we changed the name to that because, but I consider these people a professional of a trade, people that own HV businesses and the plumbing businesses in my town all drive Ferraris, I'm sorry, they're all way richer than me.

They're making a lot of I consider them, you know, the starting salary for a plumber is $275,000 this year.

@37:01 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, they're making a lot, they're making a lot of money. So, and that's okay, we can change that. So this is our initial talk, right?

But also, as the data comes in, it's going to show us what's working, what's not. And so the plan is flexible, and it has to be flexible, because we don't want to just throw spaghetti at the wall and see what sticks, we want to operate based on a thesis, a hypothesis, excuse me, and then take the data and analyze it, and then change up what we need, right?

@37:29 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

But when it comes to struggling professionals, I think you have a good point.

@37:32 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

can change that to struggling tradesmen or trades people and be able to target that specifically.

@37:42 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. Or, yeah, any, anybody with a, with a, existing business that doesn't have business education or, or experience.

@37:51 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah.

@37:52 - Matt Weisensee

My brother's a great lawyer, tax lawyer, but he doesn't know how to print a business card. Absolutely. right.

@38:01 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

And that's what part of the website that we want to build is going to focus on, so you'll see that, of course, it'll have a home, it'll have how it works, pricing, whatever, but we will want to focus on the different ICPs and speak to them directly, so that they, you know, when you speak to everybody, you speak to no one, so that they understand that we get what they're going through, and speak to them in that level.

So, yeah, so we could, for here, instead of professionals, it could be trades, trade workers, skill workers, whatever, we'll figure it out, but in essence.

@38:38 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I think it's really anybody, the print is so small here, I'm using my magnifying glass to see.

@38:46 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

There you go, there you go.

@38:47 - Matt Weisensee

I thought it was just me.

@38:49 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

No, no, no.

@38:51 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah. Yeah. The, the, I think the, the professionals really, the way I look at it is. We don't necessarily need to, I mean, we can include a list of what we're thinking about in terms of that category, but I'm thinking it's anybody who, say, is a founder or starting a small business and trying to make it grow, because a lot of people start with business, like my sister, for example, she's starting a business and she's making some crafty kinds of items from a little workshop she built in her house.

And she has no idea where to go with that. Yeah. And so it's the same thing you're talking about is somebody who's a plumber who, you know, he knows how to work on the pipes really well, he's good at it, but he has no way to build a business around it, right?

@39:48 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. And there are marketing agencies that cater to just that, but all they do is just what you're doing, Melissa.

Like, I don't know if you know Scorpion. why I'm I'm I'm But they only sell to, they bought all of that Dasta license and they target plumbers, ACVAC, those welders, et cetera.

@40:12 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

And that's all they sell to. Yeah. But that's good. And it's good to iron this out because as we, first, but nothing's going to go live on the site without you approving it, right?

And without us really having a good, solid game plan. Right now, this is our initial thoughts based on the conversations I've had with Matt.

And so this conversation will help refine what we start with as well, right? But what else? Any other, let's see.

So here's where I was talking about the goal high level automation. This is what's going to be necessary in order to connect your CRM with your CMS, which is your website, your web flow, whatever it is, right?

And they both need to speak to each other. So the... The website needs to be beautiful, it needs to be modern, it needs to feel easy to use, but on the back end, it's doing a lot of the heavy lifting with the automations that are coming from your CRM GoHigh level.

@41:12 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Okay, and we already have the GoHigh levels. We're very subscribed to that. And Matt, did you ever see that I had my EIN number on the...

@41:25 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, my computer decided to update Windows, and as soon as I did that, everything refreshed, and everything's working good again.

Yesterday, or the day before yesterday, I couldn't even get my passwords out of... Oh, by the way, Larry, just on another note, sorry, Melissa, that little thing popped up again when I was going on to log in from the website, that dash lane, that's some kind of AI pirate bot.

@41:56 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

It sounds like some kind of virus to me.

@41:59 - Matt Weisensee

Well...

@42:00 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I got rid of it. I got rid of it when I updated my system. to do a good virus scan on your computer.

@42:04 - Matt Weisensee

Well, I have everything on there, but it's fine now. I updated Windows. I think it was a Windows breach.

All right. So I have a question for you, Melissa. Because Larry asked me about it yesterday, about the five-week rollout, the pre-launch setup automation.

So we'd go live if we came to agreement this week, five weeks from now. Is that how long it takes you guys to set up the foundation?

@42:32 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Hold on. Let me see if it's specifically.

@42:38 - Matt Weisensee

Larry would know because he's the one who asked me.

@42:42 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, it's here. I think you had a section on timeline there somewhere. Yeah. So month one, in essence, we need to do all of the foundational pieces, right?

So the SEO audit, keyword research, all of that is foundational. But then on the go high level side, we need

To set up pipelines, forms, onboarding sequences, all of those are the things that need to happen in order for us to capture the data correctly and have your website function.

In conjunction with that, it's also building out the website on Webflow or wherever, right? So homepage, landing pages, all of the blog templates, all of that.

And then the tracking mechanism, so GA4, Google Tag Manager, Search Console, all of that needs to also happen at the same time.

@43:29 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Just so you know on the setup part, we already have built an analytical tool that allows us to analyze the traffic on both the website and Butternut as well as on the AI platform.

@43:49 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Great.

@43:50 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And so we'd want that to get integrated. And simply, you just need to include a script. Yeah. At the top of it.

Every page needs to have the script. Is it like a heat map? Pardon?

@44:06 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Is it like a heat map? Or are you capturing the data of the person visiting?

@44:13 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

No, we're not capturing anything about the person visiting other than our IP address.

@44:18 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Okay.

@44:19 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

But no, it's mostly for traffic.

@44:26 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

That's beautiful. I can show you what we have, but we would like to have that included anyway. It's just...

Yeah.

@44:34 - Matt Weisensee

That's to our benefit. Yeah.

@44:36 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

more data we have, the better.

@44:38 - Matt Weisensee

We want to have a dashboard, well, enhanced dashboard. We have one already, but that shows the individual user, let them have a glimpse into how well their own traffic is, how many connections and how much business they sell, et cetera.

@44:58 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah. I agree with that. Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. And I think we will have, we'll probably have, we already have a dashboard that's underdeveloped right now, but that map, that dashboard we already built will have to be expanded to include the kind of data you're talking about.

Because you're right, the individual will want to understand how they're doing on their piece of the action.

@45:28 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

All right.

@45:29 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

All right. So, so I, I understand it takes time to, to get things done. We were certainly considering we're using the butternut and we were just going to go find an agency will help us through kind of the funnel process and, and do some digital marketing through all of the social networking platforms and thought we could probably get that launched by three months ago.

Yeah.

@45:54 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Well, you can, you know what they say, right? You can either have something done. Well, something done fast. Yeah.

Yeah. Or something uncheap, you have to choose. Which, which double do you want to focus on?

@46:06 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Well, I want, I want it to be launched in a way that it works.

@46:10 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Exactly.

@46:11 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. Yeah. With a return on investment. That's the main thing is we want, we want conversions. Exactly. I mean, and we're not, we're not asking to conquer the whole world here.

We're, we're, we're looking for a thousand paid customers in the proof of concept, which makes us the viable business.

@46:28 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And we know. Just so you know, Matt, I did a little analysis on that. We need 4,000 paid users to break even.

@46:36 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. To break even. I'm talking just for the marketing though, for, for 1,000.

@46:41 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah.

@46:42 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. Yeah. And I, I want 4 million, Larry. Oh yeah, of course. Yeah.

@46:48 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I'd be happy with 1 million.

@46:51 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

But also in month one, because I did not mention it as I was speaking about the other things. It also includes our paid media setup.

So that's when we're going to be. We'll setting up all the campaigns, the ad structures, the tracking, and also the initial creative.

Before we launch any paid ads, we will meet together as a team with my digital strategy team, you guys, myself, and we're going to go over the launch plan where we're going to present to you all of the creatives, the copy, the budget allocation, who we're going after, basically the whole plan for at least the first couple of months so that you give us the green light, we start to launch it.

So that plan is being set up on that month one as well.

@47:31 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Right. So what I understand, that's why I said on week five is really the Right.

@47:38 - Melissa Ceden (EmberTribe)

Week five is the launch, you know, of course, given also the, if there's a lot of feedback or edits or stuff on the website, we'll also have to determine, okay, do we just, sometimes done is better than perfect, and we go refining as things are already starting to launch, but they're really good.

They're good enough to launch. And so we'll want to judge that. As we're getting closer to the deadline. do you typically, just because you're launched doesn't mean that you can't make edits of content and things like that along the way, can you?

Well, it depends. So if it is within scope, I think I included, so within scope, I did include ongoing website changes, like if you wanted to change something.

But it is included for us to have the, no, actually all of the pages are included in the first one.

@48:45 - Matt Weisensee

We will probably be able to make minor changes ourselves.

@48:48 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

Oh, absolutely.

@48:49 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah, absolutely.

@48:50 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

If you want to change something, again, you have all the access.

@48:53 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, guess you might at midstream think, oh, I should have set this on the website. . Okay. Thank You know, that's not there yet.

@49:03 - Melissa Ceden0 (EmberTribe)

absolutely.

@49:03 - Matt Weisensee

And Art, like Melissa said, Larry, we might discover that 99% of our revenue is coming straight from plumbers or straight from, you know, junior high students.

And we completely just become a junior high entrepreneurial network and make a million dollars in a year instead of worrying about everyone else.

So, no, that's true.

@49:26 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Along the way, we might find out that, you know, we're wasting our time and money on something and ignoring something that's hot.

@49:35 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Exactly. And that's why the data analysis is really important for us. We always try to do everything we possibly can to have as much data as we can so that we're operating based on facts and then being able to make those decisions.

@49:47 - Matt Weisensee

And once we get into the actual strategy calls and media buying calls and coming up with the actual campaigns, it's going to be a different.

So, Yeah. Yeah. Type of discussion, and like something, and I wanted to bring this to your attention, Melissa, I was in the airport yesterday, and Larry, I don't know if I sent you the message or not, but I was communicating on the plane, and I would get sporadic web, excuse me, Wi-Fi coverage, but while I was on the app, I mean, what a captive audience.

And I met a guy once that was a banker that worked for the airline industry. He told me that the whole reason why some of these big banks own airlines is because they want their captive audience and sell them other things.

They literally own, invest in airlines in exchange for media buying. And so I always look, like, who's trying to sell me something wherever I am now?

Because, you know, it's like a trade crap. And I noticed on the plane, I would get ads popping up on

On my phone, on the plane, American Airlines paired with AT&T, and it's free Wi-Fi as long as you join their frequent flyer program.

What a great marketing campaign that is. Everybody on the plane was streaming movies, emailing, texting their loved ones, and every 15 seconds, a damn Hyatt ad would pop up, and you'd have to watch it for two minutes.

I'm like thinking, once we get more sophisticated and larger budgets, there's so many other ways. I saw barcodes that pop up on signs in the airport, and you'd hold your phone up.

I saw kids holding it up to get a Popsicle at Terminal 5, and it was NetSuite ad to download accounting software, but the parents were standing there with the kids.

The kids would stop to download the free Popsicle, while the dad was like, oh, hey, check this out, I can use this for my business.

@51:59 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Mm-hmm.

@51:59 - Matt Weisensee

Mm Mm Mm Thank Advertising is getting so creative now, and I think we're going to discover our own niche somewhere along the way in the next three months during this concept.

@52:09 - Melissa Cedenno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, correct. And then in month two, you know, live, a site goes live, we have to do the redirects from the Butternut site, all of the go high level automations deployed as well, and then we're going to start that content piece, which is going to be really important, and then the paid campaigns launch as well.

So that month two is going to be a lot of movement happening in terms of exposing Entralworld to the world.

@52:38 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And then... But you have already had the Butternut stuff already. I'm a little lost on that one, because in week one through four, I thought you'd be redesigning the website and all that kind of stuff.

@52:52 - Melissa Cedenno (EmberTribe)

This 301 redirects is an SEO specific task, meaning the site URL. general, so You Points to Butternut when it says enterworld.com, we need to redirect that so we don't lose any, any kind of SEO juice that may have already been acquired, because if you just cut it out instead of redirect it, it's going to hurt SEO.

@53:15 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

It's just a back end technical. Okay, okay, that's something you do on day one of week five.

@53:22 - Melissa Cedenno (EmberTribe)

Yes, as soon as we're ready to launch the site, that's when we do it, but we can't do it before because then the site on Butternut won.

@53:28 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I get it now, okay.

@53:30 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, yeah. And then month three, that's where we are optimizing and scaling, right? We have a month of data, and we're going to continue doing the content pieces.

We're going to be able to see, okay, what data did we learn on month two on the initial, on the initial test, and then we optimize and we scale as, as it seems fit.

And then we also are going to be introducing a lot more deliverables, engagements, things that are going to really amplify the marketing at that point.

But it will be good to ... Have initial data from month two so that we're already starting to see something and help us launch the new initiatives in month three with more data.

@54:11 - Matt Weisensee

Oh, and Larry, on this list here, disregard the specific names like Amplifier or we might change those to a different content tool like Canva or whatever, because they're really just commodities.

They're all low cost, you know, high value, concrete tools. It's like buying a different pair of pliers.

@54:37 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I mean, if that's content management, who's building the 40 articles?

@54:44 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

We are.

@54:45 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Oh. Okay, so why do we need to amplify it all then?

@54:50 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Because it's a different strategy. Those articles are going on your site. They're building the SEO, the traffic, the eyes, the clicks to your site.

And we're... It's a... We're... It's an incredibly successful strategy to bring new people that have never heard of Entra World to your site.

So that is more articles specifically on your site. The Amplifier, some sort of that.

@55:14 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I'm sorry, were you saying something? Well, your definition of article, this is mostly promotional type content in the articles.

Are they topical about business, that kind of thing?

@55:27 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

They're topical clusters based on the SEO research that we're going to do in month one. So based on the ICPs that we want to reach and what they are currently asking, if it's a plumber, for example, they might be Googling something like, what's the best, whatever, right?

Solution for XYZ. We want to be answering those questions because we want to meet them where they're at and then get to our site.

@55:52 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I think you said in here somewhere you had like four of these articles already generated.

@55:57 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah. There, could share with us so I can get Can an idea what that looks like? Yeah. I sent them to Matt, think, but I'm happy to share them with you as soon as we get off the call.

Okay.

@56:10 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

The reason I'm asking, I'm wondering, because we have one of our tabs within our applications called Resources, and we're trying to build a collection of topical articles.

I'm wondering if these same articles then can be archived on our platform in our resources area.

@56:32 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yes, they're guides, how-tos, listicles, things like that. Absolutely.

@56:36 - Matt Weisensee

that's perfect. And I sent them all to you this morning, Larry.

@56:39 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

You got a zip folder full of them in your Yeah, I saw that. I didn't look at them yet, but I saw the email.

But those are all the that you've generated, right, Matt?

@56:48 - Matt Weisensee

They're not anything having to do with... know, those are all the ones to prepare for this call to show you what they wrote already for our site.

Oh, so I already have...

@56:59 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

So I already We have those four examples that Melissa was talking about.

@57:02 - Matt Weisensee

Oh, okay. Yeah, I printed them for you, too. And you have a link to them, but you can see them how they look on the printed page, too.

@57:10 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Yeah, that's good. I'll look at that after we get off the call.

@57:12 - Matt Weisensee

And Melissa, can you talk to that, how the value of having the live article with the hyperlinks and the tracking code and everything versus somebody just downloading an article or a Yeah, so the way that SEO works and also the LLM, so the, you know, chat GPTs, the perplexity, whatever.

@57:34 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Oh, did she freeze?

@57:36 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Oh, did I freeze? Can you hear me?

@57:39 - Matt Weisensee

Can you hear me? I can hear you.

@57:40 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Uh-oh.

@57:42 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Larry, your face is frozen.

@57:44 - Matt Weisensee

I can hear you, though. There you are.

@57:52 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I think one of us, it might have been me, had an internet problem.

@57:57 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, it's okay. Um, so. So , it went away. What were we talking about?

@58:06 - Matt Weisensee

About the value of having the articles and the content clickable, trackable.

@58:13 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, so when it comes to SEO and the LLMs, it's really important to follow the guidelines that they want so that we can become more visible.

When somebody is searching on ChatGPT about resources, ChatGPT will cite resources or link them directly. And so we want to, for other clients, this has been very successful.

We want to write content that is going to not only meet the intent of what the person is asking and wanting, but also is the intent of what the AIs or Google snippets or SEO want.

@58:48 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

So are you then, are you saying that you're feeding these articles into the LLCs?

@58:55 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

The LLMs? I'm feeding them into...

@58:57 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Ellen, Ellen, are... right.

@59:00 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Sorry, I got my letter from. It's okay. I'm feeding them into, not into ChatGPT. That's a separate strategy, which is included, but separately.

I'm feeding them into, they're being indexed on Google, right? So when they're indexed on Google, that means that they're discoverable to the LMs or discoverable to the world.

So when people are searching for a specific query or keyword, depending on what it is, and if we've answered that query in our article, we will show up on the top or we'll show up as an answer that the AI gives, right?

So as a resource or whatever. And then, so that is living on your site. Separately, the Reddit seeding, that does feed the LLMs.

So Reddit entered into a $70 million contract with OpenAI and with Perplexity to feed them the data based on whatever it is that they want, because Reddit is such a.

and, it's Wealth of information of different forums and people and questions and answers and whatever, right? And so the strategy that we're using for Reddit is we're going to seed Reddit.

We're going to add posts from aged accounts. Think of it like influencers on Reddit that have had accounts for a long time.

We're going to add posts, answer questions that link to Entralworld, all of that to be able to not only show up on Reddit, but also seed the LLMs, what we want them to gather.

So that's part of the month three strategy.

@1:00:34 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

So when you say LLMs, plural, you're referring to ChatGPT, but about others like Copilot and there's like 50 of them now, I think.

@1:00:45 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, Reddit entered into a contract with OpenAI and Perplexity. I think there's another contract they entered into to be their data source.

So it's the two really big ones at the very minimum, but also because we are doing all of our.

It also feeds into the Google AI, the snippets on top of Gemini.

@1:01:08 - Matt Weisensee

Yeah. Larry, do you use Reddit? Because I had calls with them a month ago. Yeah. I've browsed them.

@1:01:17 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

I have an account. Yeah, I've looked at them before, but I don't really even have an account there.

@1:01:22 - Matt Weisensee

My daughter references it all the time in just conversation with me. She's in law school and she was like, well, Reddit said this about blah, blah, blah.

And, you know, they've changed their strategy. I mean, it's borderline an ethics issue with them. They even, you know, were very transparent, you know, because they're supposed to be organic blogging and people writing about, you know, referencing and recommendation.

But now they couldn't resist the money and they want to sell the data that they have. So they're creating this advertising space where people can create accounts and put information about their companies in and then they can.

can sell it to the LLMs, so it's found, so they created a whole new world of Reddit for paid sponsorship almost, but it's still considered very legitimate and much more, I would say, authentic than any other source, and they have something like 700 million clicks on specific topics per day, or maybe it's 7 billion.

You probably, I probably got that number wrong, but it's, it's enormous, and it's very effective. I use it now for like looking up who, which Ferrari mechanic can do the best, you know, work in Orange County, as an example, and I found a guy in Newport Beach, et cetera.

@1:02:47 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Um, gentlemen, I, I had a call start three minutes ago.

@1:02:50 - Matt Weisensee

Oh, sorry, so sorry.

@1:02:52 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

No, it's okay. It's okay. I do want to make sure, are there any other questions that I can help with?

Anything else, Larry, that I can make you feel it?

@1:03:00 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Well, you know, one thing I meant to ask, and I guess it would have to be a different call, I just didn't really get a whole lot of background in your company, and so I don't know really too much about the company.

I should have asked that first.

@1:03:17 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, I can give you, I say this all the time on my call, so I can give you a quick two-minute elevator pitch and give you a rundown.

So EmberTribe was founded in 2015, and even back then, before COVID times, our founders always said that they wanted to not be subject to a small demographic area for talent.

So they've always been remote first, always, 100%, even before COVID. And so the goal with that was to be able to capture talent from wherever they are because they're the best, not because they just live here and they can attend an office.

And so that has always been a key factor in how we work. But we launched, not we, but the founders launched EmberTribe back in...

In 2015, when you can put Facebook ads and make a bajillion dollars because nobody else was doing it. And so it really was a lot of that first.

But then as new platforms introduced ads like Google and then Snapchat and Instagram, all of these things, we obviously had to make sure that we were meeting our clients' needs and marketing well.

So we are a full funnel, Omnichannel agency, meaning on digital. So wherever your prospect is digitally, that's where we are too.

So whether it's email marketing, website development, paid ads, SEO, organic social media, wherever they live, we are there too, depending on what obviously our scope is.

And so we've really evolved from, you know, Facebook ads to really meet the needs of our clients throughout the years.

And I guess now it's been 2015 to 20, 12 years. And yeah, so.

@1:04:52 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

How many total people do you have working for you?

@1:04:54 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

I just had this number up. I actually have a screenshot of it because I was. was looking at this.

see.

@1:05:04 - Matt Weisensee

And Larry, I sent you a link to the company and their parent or their sister companies, podcasting and all that.

@1:05:16 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

We have 14.

@1:05:18 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Okay.

@1:05:20 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah. And so.

@1:05:22 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Do you work internationally?

@1:05:24 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yes. Like to market to international brands?

@1:05:27 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Because I think, you know, maybe beyond your six month horizon there, we'll probably the next phase will be expanding into some of the other English speaking countries.

@1:05:39 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yes, absolutely. And also I'm fluent in Spanish and actually Sor's our director of growth. He lives in London, but he's originally from Venezuela.

So there's a lot of capacity to also expand into Spanish speaking languages.

@1:05:53 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Okay.

@1:05:53 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

that's something that interests you.

@1:05:55 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Oh, yeah. It all depends on what's involved with the translations side of things. Yeah. I suppose.

@1:06:00 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Yeah, for sure, but yeah, so I hope that answered your question.

@1:06:04 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

All right, I'll let you go. I think I have your email, and so I can send additional questions that way, I suppose, but we do want to get...

ACTION ITEM: Send EmberTribe SOW to Larry; request review/signature - WATCH

@1:06:14 - Matt Weisensee

Have your own conversation, one-on-one. I want to make this a good introduction.

@1:06:19 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Thanks a lot, Melissa.

@1:06:20 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

And we do want to pull the trigger on this as soon as possible, too.

@1:06:24 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Would you like me to send you the scope of work for you to review it?

@1:06:27 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

Is that something different than I already have?

@1:06:29 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

No, it's the official document, because this is more of a presentation, but it would not...

@1:06:34 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

more like a proposal then. Okay, yeah.

@1:06:36 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Exactly.

@1:06:36 - Larry Mahar (maharco.com)

It wouldn't have anything different than this, but it'd be what we would officially sign to be able to start our engagement.

Okay, yeah. Go ahead and send that.

@1:06:45 - Melissa Cedeno (EmberTribe)

Sounds good. All right, gentlemen, have a great day. much. Of course, my pleasure.

@1:06:48 - Matt Weisensee

Thanks, Larry. Thanks for joining. Bye. Bye. Bye.
